Abstract	The Sixth Pan-African Congress convened at the University of Dar es Salaam in Tanzania and was hosted by the Tanganyika African National Union, June 3-13, 1974. The congress was an international forum poised to address the problems facing African people. The Sixth Pan-African Congress Records document individuals who attended the conference, as well as a record of those who were invited but did not attend. Also included is correspondence from each of the districts involved, as well as financial and fundraising records, press material, position papers, committee files, and newspaper clippings.

Biographical/Historical note

The Sixth Pan-African Congress convened at the University of Dar es Salaam in Tanzania and was hosted by the Tanganyika African National Union, June 3-13, 1974. The congress was an international forum poised to address the problems facing African people. The Sixth Pan African Congress occurred more than 30 years after the Fifth Congress held in Manchester, England 1945. The Sixth Congress was the first of the series held on African soil. During the conference, congress delegates sought to declare independence, self-determination, unity and self-reliance throughout the African diaspora. Instituting science and technology were just two other challenges facing African nations. Fighting the last struggles of colonialism and minority rule were also major concerns for the congressional delegates. The goals for the conference were regaining ground for Africa's own natural resources, military, finances, and material.

The history of the Pan-African Congresses begins in 1900, when the first congress was held in London July 23-25, 1900. Throughout the mid-to-late nineteenth century there were many revolts and uprisings against colonialism on the African continent. The first congress is a reflection of and response to the unrest and upheavals in the colonial world. In February of 1919, W.E.B. DuBois called a Pan-African meeting, claiming his gathering to be the first congressional meeting. The numbered system begins with the February 1919 meeting in Paris. The second congress was in 1921, and held in multiple cities, including Paris, London and Brussels. The third congress was held in Lisbon and London in 1923. The fourth congress was held in New York City in 1927. The fifth congress was held in 1945 in Manchester.
